Congratulations to Breanna Lewis Winner of the 2007 Congressional Art Contest!

April 26, 2007

Washington, DC: This year marks the 26th anniversary of the Congressional art competition, which brings together thousands of high school students from across the country seeking to represent their congressional districts.

The winning entries hang in a hallway within the U.S. Capitol complex in Washington, DC for one year.

More than 90 students from around the 14th congressional district submitted entries, which were judged by members of the Brazosport Art League. Congratulations are in order for the following participants:

Winning Entry: "Jazzfest" (painting) Breanna Lewis, Danbury High School

Honorable Mention:

John Pena, Angleton High School

Bronzon Galzier, Angleton High School

Saul Shaw, Angleton High School

Krystal Cannon, Angleton High School

Seth Pennington, Angleton High School

David Hathway, El Campo High School
