Congratulations to Brittany Faas Winner of the 2006 Congressional Art Contest!

May 18, 2006

Washington, DC: This year marks the 25th anniversary of the Congressional art competition, which brings together thousands of high school students from across the country seeking to represent their congressional districts.

The winning entries hang in a hallway within the U.S. Capitol complex in Washington, DC for one year.

More than 50 students from around the 14th congressional district submitted entries, which were previewed by judges and the public during a 10-day open house in Galveston. Congratulations are in order for the following participants:

Winning Entry: “Are Ya Comin’?” (painting) Brittany Faas, El Campo High School

Honorable Mention:

Isaac Farley, Angleton High School Leslie LaChance, Angleton High School Kristin Mathew, Angleton High School Joel Stanulonis, Faith West Academy Zahira Gallardo, Angleton High School